

Suits Lured by Embroidery

ALTHOUGH the notes of this season promised to turn over a new leaf and write thereon, in very large letters the word "Simplicity," they appear to have tapered from this good intention. Fashion has a wayward fancy and is not faithful to one idea for long, we know. Just now embroideries are among the those who follow, and therefore there is much more of it than might have been expected after its long popularity last season. Suits have come under the spell and the new necks, huffs and receive much rich embellishment.

Two examples of the embroidery made in suits, as shown in the illustration above, have chosen solid embroidery in silk floss, but have handled it in very different ways. The first example is of the left is one of several that shows about the collar and cuffs by the center front, under the arms, and appears in a number of places which have been used in a variety of ways. Some of the patterns are shown in the illustration and again in the accompanying photograph, which is a reproduction of a suit made in this style.
